

Maxine Warsh

Miami expat Maxine Warsh is an entrepreneur in the facial rejuvenation business and developed a line of skin care products and MWFR-branded cosmetic microcurrent technology. She has a B.Sc. from the University of Florida in Gainesville and is expanding skin rejuvenation services at her clinic near Bayview Village and to other locations.

NOW—MICROCURRENT PLUS COLLAGEN

MAXINE WARSH FACIAL REJUVENATION

Microcurrent, now available with Collagen Correction, is boosting the popularity of this non-invasive cosmetic facial rejuvenation treatment up a notch. Already an obvious choice for women (and men!) who prefer non-surgical antiaging therapies, it's even more popular when applied with collagen. Now you can do it yourself with our new home unit.

This ultra gentle and ultra simple antiaging treatment has been around for a long time. But it's generating added buzz and interest from baby boomers who want to look ultra ageless.

Once clients see this unique cosmetic microcurrent technology chase away signs of aging to give a definite youthful glow, they become regulars. Women (and men) like that it gives a bouncy, thicker feel to the skin, is non invasive, and has no bruising, down time, or side effects except improvement. This may be why it's popular with celebs and those in the public eye, and why more than 9000 treatments in ten years have been given to our Toronto clients.

"People should do this to look and feel their best for now and for later. Consider it a preventative health measure. When we look good, we feel good."

This unique system of cosmetic microcurrent therapy is also applied to the hands, neck and décolleté, where age is hard to hide. Treatment usually consists of 12 visits. A monthly booster (also available with collagen) keeps you at your best. The benefits are cumulative so the earlier you start the better, but it's never too late. Average client age is 51.

Cosmetic microcurrent grew out of applications to reduce atrophy for Bell's palsy and stroke patients when its use showed skin renewal properties. It works on the same principle as training muscles in the gym keeps us functional and youthful and tones and plumps the skin from the inside out.

Cosmetic microcurrent facial rejuvenation is the treatment a growing number of clients choose to look naturally revitalized, youthful, and fresh.

It's much more fun (and way less costly!) than going under the knife. Ask about the introductory special.

*To try it or for information, contact:
Maxine Warsh Facial Rejuvenation
305 Sheppard Ave. East 416 221 0568
www.MaxineWarsh.com • MaxineWarsh@rogers.com*